

EUROPEAN UNION SUBNATIONAL JUSTICE, GOVERNANCE, AND RULE OF LAW INDICATORS

General Population Survey Report

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The Rule of Law in Colombia: Key Findings from the General Population Poll 2022 was produced by the World Justice Project under the research oversight of Alejandro Ponce and the executive direction of Elizabeth Andersen.

The production of this report was led by Ana María Montoya and Tanya Primiani. This report was prepared by Said Aarji, Erin Campbell, James Davis, Joshua Fuller, Skye Jacobs, Ana María Montoya, Santiago Pardo, Tanya Primiani, Hannah Rigazzi, Natalia Rodríguez Cajamarca, Victoria Thomaides, Carlos Toruño Paniagua, and Moss Woodbury.

Mariana Lopez was the graphic designer for this report.

Sampling, fieldwork, and data processing in El Salvador, Belize, Nicaragua, and Panama were conducted by CID Gallup, based in Costa Rica. Data collection in Guatemala and Honduras was conducted by Mercaplan, based in Honduras.

Scripting of the questionnaire in the online platform SurveyToGo was conducted by Ezekiel Agwata of Polar Solutions.

The findings in this report are taken from the General Population Poll (GPP) conducted for the World Justice Project in 2022. The GPP's conceptual framework and methodology were developed by Mark David Agrast, Juan Carlos Botero, and Alejandro Ponce. The methodology for this iteration of the GPP was developed by Lindsey Bock, Ana Cárdenas, Nora Futtner, Amy Gryskiewicz, Verónica Jaso, Ana María Montoya, Alejandro Ponce, Eréndira González Portillo, Tanya Primiani, Natalia Rodríguez Cajamarca, Victoria Thomaides, and Marcelo Torres.

This report was made possible with the support of the U.S. Department of State's Bureau of International Narcotics and Law Enforcement Affairs' Office of Western Hemisphere (INL). The views expressed in this report are those of the survey respondents and do not necessarily represent the views of INL.

ABOUT THIS REPORT

EFFECTIVE RULE OF LAW reduces corruption, combats poverty and disease, and protects people from injustices large and small. Strengthening the rule of law is an important objective for governments, donors, and civil society organizations around the world. To be effective, rule of law development requires clarity about the fundamental features that define the rule of law, as well as an adequate basis for its evaluation and measurement.

The Rule of Law in Colombia: Key Findings from the General Population Poll 2022 presents question-level data drawn from the General Population Poll (GPP), an original data source designed and collected by the World Justice Project. To provide a more in-depth view of trends in perceptions of rule of law in Colombia, this report also presents select findings over time and compared to Colombia's regional peers within the Andean subregion of South America.

This report represents the voices of people in Colombia and their experiences with the rule of law in their country.

The GPP was conducted in May and June 2022 through face-to-face interviews to a nationally representative sample of 1,000 Colombian households. This poll was designed to capture data on the experiences and perceptions of ordinary people regarding a variety of themes related to the rule of law.

The data derived from the General Population Poll is presented in this report as thematic briefs, each one highlighting a different dimension of the rule of law from the perspective of Colombians. These thematic briefs focus on the current rule of law ecosystem in Colombia while simultaneously illuminating changes over time and comparisons across the following peer countries in the Andean region: Bolivia, Ecuador, and Peru. Each section touches upon perceptions of and attitudes towards the following topics: accountability, authoritarianism, fundamental freedoms, corruption, bribery victimization, trust in institutions, the criminal justice system and its actors, police performance, crime victimization, support for victims of crime, security, and access to justice.

PROJECT DESIGN

To present an image that accurately portrays the rule of law as experienced by ordinary people, data in this report is drawn from the General Population Poll (GPP), an original data source designed and collected by the World Justice Project (WJP). The GPP captures the experiences and perceptions of ordinary citizens concerning the performance of the state and its agents and the actual operation of the legal framework in their country.

The General Population Poll used to collect data in South America in 2022 features several new questions that highlight perceptions on issues salient to the region, including corruption, authoritarian behaviors, police performance, criminal justice, and security. In total, the General Population Poll questionnaire includes 124 perception-based questions and 85 experience-based questions, along with sociodemographic information on all respondents. Additionally, the GPP in Colombia was administered to a sample of 1,000 respondents.

Data Collection

The GPP in Colombia was conducted for the WJP's The Rule of Law in Colombia: Key Findings from the General Population Poll 2022 with sampling, fieldwork, and data processing by Tempo Group, based in Bogotá, Colombia. Tempo Group administered the surveys between May and June 2022, conducting face-to-face interviews using a multi-stage random sampling design. The target population group for this survey included Colombians aged 18 years or older residing across 18 cities throughout the country.

SAMPLE SIZE & SAMPLE FRAME

The General Population Poll in Colombia represents an achieved total sample size of 1,000 interviews distributed proportionally across all three regions. Tempo Group based the sampling frame on the 2022 projected population figures from the National Administrative Department of Statistics (DANE), acquiring a proportionally stratified sample by department, age, gender, socioeconomic status, and level of urbanization.

In order to address all relevant topics while controlling the questionnaire length, the World Justice Project split three of the survey modules into two versions (Option A and Option B) and randomly assigned one option to each respondent for each module. These modules included: Hypothetical Situations, Civic Participation, and Institutional Performance. Aside from these modules, the questionnaires are identical. A link to the complete survey instrument, in English and Spanish, can be found in the Appendix of this report.

SAMPLING

Regions and cities were selected to achieve a nationally representative sample of the country. Within cities, neighborhood blocks were selected using probability proportional to size sampling. In rural areas, vereda zones, or sub-municipalities, were selected using probability proportional to size sampling. Each sampling unit was then selected randomly, and 6 interviews were assigned to each unit. Within the sampled segments, survey administrators performed a systematic random route to sample households and used a Kish grid to select respondents. If the selected respondent declined to be interviewed or otherwise did not meet the characteristics of the target quota, the interviewer moved on to the next household.

Challenges to data collection included security issues and accessibility in rural areas although ultimately, no sample units were substituted.

METHODOLOGICAL MATERIALS

GENERAL POPULATION POLL (GPP)

The General Population Poll in Central America was designed to capture high-quality data on the realities and concerns of ordinary people on a variety of themes related to the rule of law, including government accountability, bribery, corruption, police performance, crime and insecurity, and migration.

ABOUT THE WORLD JUSTICE PROJECT

THE WORLD JUSTICE PROJECT (WJP) is an independent, multidisciplinary organization working to create knowledge, build awareness, and stimulate action to advance the rule of law worldwide. Effective rule of law is the foundation for communities of justice, opportunity, and peace—underpinning development, accountable government, and respect for fundamental rights.

The WJP builds and supports a global, multidisciplinary movement for the rule of law through three lines of work: collecting, organizing, and analyzing original, independent rule of law data, including the World Justice Project Rule of Law Index®; supporting research, scholarship, and teaching about the importance of the rule of law, its relationship to development, and effective strategies to strengthen it; and connecting and building an engaged global network of policymakers and advocates to advance the rule of law through strategic partnerships, convenings, coordinated advocacy, and support for locally led initiatives.
